Join us for an art discussion about the art of Back to the Ranch and learn about California Impressionism. Jared Mathis, Moulton Museum President, will be sharing about the creation of Moulton Museum's permanent art collection. Jeff Sewell will discuss his story as an artist and his techniques of creating art.

Phil Olson, of Mayen Olson frame makers, will present about the process of creating handcrafted gold-leafed frames.

Award-winning artist, Jeff Sewell, created all new paintings for the "Back to the Ranch" exhibit. Aliso and Wood Canyons were once part of the historic Moulton Ranch, a 21, 723 acre farming and ranching operation.

"Back to the Ranch" will transport you back in time to the early history of Orange County. Jared Mathis, President of Moulton Museum and CEO of The Moulton Company said, "We are incredibly fortunate to work with such talented individuals like Jeff Sewell who have the ability to capture what it was like to live on the ranch all those years ago."

Did you know Jeff Sewell's paintings are for sale on-site at Moulton Museum? Congrats to those who have already purchased. Don't miss out on this amazing opportunity!

Jeff Sewell, artist, was born and raised in Southern California. Jeff is well known for his paintings of California Scenery. He paints predominantly “en plein air” and also enjoys developing works in his studio. Jeff Sewell is an award-winning American Artist, focusing on California Impressionism. Jeff won Best in Show and Collectors' Choice Award at Laguna Plein Air Painters Associations' (LPAPA) 24th Laguna Beach Plein Air Painting Invitational. Rather than making an exact replication of the subject, Jeff's love for Impressionism inspires him to inject his own style and personality into his work. Sewell hopes his “less information is more” approach encourages viewers to fill in all the details and explore the different emotions each painting evokes. Jeff is the founder and lead mentor of LPAPA's Plein Air Project, an educational program encouraging 4th graders to explore outdoor painting. Sewell has mentored over 5,000 students.
